Call 1989

EXPERIENCE

Georgia has over 23 years experience as an advocate and practices exclusively in the field of family law. Her initial practice encompassed both criminal law and family law although for the past 18 years she has practiced exclusively in child care law specialising in particular in public law matters representing both parents and guardians.

Her early experience as a criminal lawyer makes her a particularly effective choice in highly contested matters and she is admired by both the judiciary and her colleagues alike for her robust and determined approach which she combines with a real understanding of the needs of each particular case. She brings a nuanced and considered approach to all matters she deals with. She has a reputation for representing her clients with passion and conviction.

Georgia deals with matters from sexual abuse and serious NAI/death of a child to long term neglect and emotional abuse, she has a particular interest in ensuring that the voice of the child is heard in court proceedings and regularly acts on behalf of children for both CAFCASS and NYAS.
