EXPERIENCE

Judith has a strong practice in complex public law proceedings. She specialises in care proceedings involving non-accidental injury, allegations of sexual abuse, factitious/induced illness, domestic violence including when one parent has killed the other parent, and placement outside the jurisdiction. She is also often instructed in cases involving adoption and is regularly asked to advise in complicated care proceedings and adoption proceedings. Judith has particular experience in care proceedings involving parallel criminal proceedings.

A particular interest is that of siblings in care proceedings and adoption. Judith has written articles on this topic and has presented training on this issue including co- for the Judicial College alongside Professor Daniel Monk.

Judith is also instructed in private law proceedings which includes cases concerning alleged parental alienation and intractable contact disputes. She has experience of cases which began as private law proceedings which then become subject to local authority involvement.

Judith also undertakes work involving the Court of Protection and vulnerable adults, especially cases involving forced marriage. She has written articles and provided training on the topic of forced marriage.

Judith is known as a persuasive and accessible advocate with an attention to detail and a straightforward manner. She regularly presents lectures and seminars on current issues of child law. Judith is a Trustee and Treasurer of the charity 'I Can Be'.
